The Role

We're recruiting for a Lead Interaction Designer here at Justice Digital, to be part of our warm and collaborative HM Prison & Probation Service (HMPPS) team.

These are exciting times at Justice Digital. We have a clear vision — to develop a digitally-enabled justice system that's better and simpler for everyone. We're looking for talented people who are passionate about this mission and ready for the challenge.

You'll be welcomed into a thriving design community and into multidisciplinary teams, alongside user researchers, product owners, delivery managers and software developers to deliver world-class, user-centred services.

As well as doing great work, we're creating a place that's great to work in. We offer brilliant training opportunities, excellent kit and support from expert colleagues. On top of that, you'll find flexible working, an inclusive culture and a place where your opinion is valued.

We are growing our digital services and products at MoJ, especially within HM Prison & Probation Service (HMPPS). Our teams could be designing a sophisticated case management system for probation staff or designing tools that help people in prison prepare for life after release.

A lead interaction designer is an expert practitioner who influences and mentors others. You will support designers across teams to do their best work and ensure designs are consistently inclusive, accessible and easy to use.

Working with the other MoJ Design Leads and the Head of Design, you'll also be a part of advancing our approach across the department, helping to grow our design culture, and standardising and systemising the way we work to allow the design function to scale.
